1. Nine persons are assigned to three cars that hold two, three, and five persons respectively. How many ways can the nine persons be assigned to the three cars?

2. Ten persons, among them A and B, are randomly assigned to a row of ten chairs.
   i) Find the probability that A and B are separated by exactly three other persons.
   ii) Find the probability that A and B are seated next to each other.